Cirkus for pilots

Book the aircraft, log your flights, see your invoices, and get paid back for things you buy for the plane. Everything works in the browser on your phone — nothing to install.

1 Getting in

Open the address you've been sent. If you've been added by an admin, log in with your email and the temporary password they gave you, then change it under More → Change password. If you registered yourself, an admin has to approve you first; you'll get a message when you can log in.

On your phone, add Cirkus to the home screen (Safari: Share → Add to Home Screen; Chrome: menu → Add to Home screen). It then opens like an app, with the Cirkus icon.

2 Book the aircraft

Book shows a week. On the phone, pick a day from the strip and tap a free hour; on a laptop, click a free slot in the grid. The form fills in a two-hour slot — adjust start and end (15-minute steps) and add a note if you like, then Confirm booking.

Times are Helsinki local time. Two people can't book the same time; if your booking overlaps someone else's, you'll be told and nothing is saved.

Your bookings appear under This week with Edit and Cancel. Edit opens the booking in the calendar — move it, then Save changes. Both work until the booking has ended.

Changing a booking: it moves in the grid as you edit.

Editing a flight: same form, prefilled.

3 Log the flight

After landing, open Log. Enter off-block and on-block times in UTC, the Tacho start and end (start is prefilled from the previous flight — check it against the meter), departure and arrival as ICAO codes (XXXX for no aerodrome), landings, flight type, persons on board, and any fuel or oil you added. If you flew with an instructor or a backup pilot, pick them and their role. Save flight log.

The flight is now SUBMITTED. OH-KML is invoiced by the hour from the Tacho, so the Tacho readings are what matter most.

A plane billed by airborne time (the form changes when you pick it): enter take-off and landing times as well — they start out equal to the block times — and those are what you're billed on, to the minute. Tacho is only asked if the plane records it, and then it's optional. Under the times the form shows both figures: what will be billed and what your logbook records.

Made a mistake? In Logbook, every flight that hasn't been invoiced yet has Edit and Delete. Once a flight is on an invoice it shows BILLED and is frozen — ask an admin if something is wrong with it.

4 Your logbook and invoices

Logbook lists every flight you've flown as PIC, instructor or backup pilot, with your total hours, PIC hours and this month's flying — all as block time, off-block to on-block, whatever the plane. The billed figure (Tacho or take-off → landing) is shown next to each flight. More → Invoices shows your invoices. The club's invoicing runs through Procountor: the invoice itself arrives by email from Procountor, and Cirkus shows the same thing — Procountor's invoice number, the amount, the due date and the reference number to use when you pay by bank transfer. An invoice is SENT until the payment has been recorded, then PAID (Cirkus checks with Procountor about once an hour). Open one to see the flights on it and print it for your records. Invoices have 14-day terms. Questions about an invoice go to the club's admin; a wrong invoice is corrected in Procountor, not by editing the flight.

5 Getting paid back for expenses

Bought oil or something else for the plane? More → Expenses → New receipt. Take a photo of the receipt (both sides if the back has details), enter the date, where you bought it and the total, and say what it was for: one line per category — Öljy, Tarvikkeet or Muut — with the amount. One receipt can have several lines; the lines must add up to the receipt total, and the form shows you when they do. Send receipt.

An admin looks at the photo, pays you by bank transfer and marks the receipt PAID. If something isn't a club expense it comes back REJECTED with a reason; you can fix and resend it. Until it's paid you can edit or delete it.

Keep the paper receipt until you've been paid.

A receipt split across two categories.

6 A flight, from start to finish

WHEN	WHAT YOU DO	WHERE
Before	Book a slot; change or cancel it yourself if plans change	Book
Flying	Nothing in the app — note the Tacho before and after	—
After landing	Log the flight (UTC times, Tacho, route, type, POB)	Log
Later	Correct a typo while the flight is still submitted	Logbook → Edit
Bought something?	Photograph the receipt and send it	More → Expenses
Month end	Pay the invoice; check it under Invoices	More → Invoices
